Halloween

Aliana Sanchez 12th Grade

Halloween has always been on October 31st, and it is supposed to be a scary type of season. However, Halloween is just basically a time to go out with friends and enjoy the time that you have with them. You can take your younger-aged siblings trick or treating and make sure they have a good time going up to people's houses and receiving candy. I enjoy the actual scary haunted houses and not the non-scary houses because what's the fun if there are just fake people trying to scare you. Instead, I'd rather want actual people attempting to scare you.

Halloween's most popular tradition is carving a pumpkin. A pumpkin is often linked to rebirth and fertility, and they also symbolize harvests and crops. They fit the season in which Halloween falls every year. For those who go trick or treating, a luminous pumpkin on the stairs is the symbol that those who live there want a visit. All kids dress up for Halloween as their favorite character, or just basically their favorite person. Teenagers don't get to go trick or treating, but it does feel nice to go and enjoy it. Now that we're getting older, we'd rather hang out with friends and go to scary events. You know the basic stuff.

Different Types of Learners

Lindsey Anderson 10th

There are 4 main types of learners: visual, auditory, kinesthetic, and reading/writing. These types all learn in different ways. A visual learner often takes information in when they watch it. For example, they might learn something better by watching someone else do it than they will if they read how to do it. Next up we have auditory learners. The auditory type learns better when something is explained to them or read aloud. For example, auditory learners would probably learn better if you explained how to do it vs. showing them how to do it.

A Kinesthetic learner learns better by doing it. They would most likely do better if they did it as you explained it to them instead of them reading about it. Finally, a reading/writing learner would understand something the best if they had to read and or write about it. They would do better if you had them read about it vs. having them listen to it being explained. All of this is to say that everyone is different, and everyone learns differently.

Trick-or-Treating Safety

Laressa Laurie 10th Grade

Halloween is a wonderful night full of fun and most importantly; trick or treating. Trick or treating is a fun time for kids of all ages. Children get to dress up in their costumes and go door to door, collecting candy. Although it is a fun night, we must make sure to stay safe. It is very important to be safe while trick or treating. When trick or treating, make sure you are walking or driving with trusted adults or a trusted group of people. While walking around on Halloween night, you should watch out for cars while crossing the street, and you should try staying on the sidewalk as much as possible.

With the days getting shorter, it gets darker earlier. You should try to have some source of light such as glowsticks or reflective clothing that way cars can see you when you are crossing the streets. Not only should the trick-or-treating kids be careful, but those who are driving around town that night should be careful too. Make sure to be on the lookout for kids walking and crossing streets and drive slowly. Also remember, Halloween nights in Minnesota can be very cold at times, so don't forget to dress appropriately for the weather.
